MUCHES CERTAIN OF GOOD SCHEDULE

Navy Is Booking Strong Opponents on Gridiron for Coming Campaign.

By HUGH R. RILEY.

ANAPOLIS, Dec. 9.—The middie class of a representative football schedule for 1920, Dobbie's team will meet the Tigers at Princeton October 23. Georgetown will come here on November 6 and the Army game, probably at New York, will be played November 27.

In addition to these games there is a fair prospect that the University of Pennsylvania, Georgia Tech and the University of Nebraska will play at Annapolis. If these or even one or two of the latter three mentioned are secured, the Navy will have the best schedule in its history next year.

The great stroke securing the Princeton game and its approval by Secretary Daniels was the work of Comdr. D. L. Howard, athletic officer of the academy. The agreement includes the playing of Princeton at Annapolis in 1921, and it is hoped that the arrangement will be permanent, the athletic authorities of Princeton having expressed their willingness to come to Annapolis during the seasons in which they play Harvard at Princeton.

May Battle Quakers. Negotiations have also been pending with the University of Pennsylvania, and it is hoped that Pennsylvania will be willing to play the midshipmen at Annapolis next season, upon the assurance of a return game in 1921 at Philadelphia. At any rate, the Navy is willing to go to Philadelphia in 1921, as that year they will play Princeton at Annapolis.

Should the Naval Academy secure the games now pending with Georgia Tech and Nebraska, October 16 and 20, to be the only available date for Pennsylvania. However, the Navy is not banking on the Penn game for next year, though it would like to have it.

Chances of Georgia Tech playing at Annapolis next season are somewhat above par, that of Nebraska coming here are not so good. The Navy offered Georgia Tech October 30 and received a wire in reply that the team would like to accept the date. If it could make certain rearrangements of the games already scheduled, the management asked that the Navy keep the date open.

The University of Nebraska wrote an offer to play at Annapolis on November 15, and received the reply that the Navy would be glad to have them, but the game would be rearranged. The amount asked by Nebraska was prohibitive, but the matter is still pending, and the game may be arranged.

Case of Army Game. Of course, the Army game will be played, the date being set for November 27, under an agreement for a series of games, made some years ago. The Navy will receive splendid preparation for this contest through the strong opponents which they have previously met, and the playing of a team like Princeton away from the Annapolis grounds will be the best thing which could happen for the Navy team.

It is not certain whether the first game will be played on the 24 or 25th of October, and North Carolina State will probably be the first opponents. Bucknell and West Virginia Wesleyan gave the midshipmen good games this season, and they would like to see them on the 1920 schedule.

It is probable that no game will be played on November 20, the week before the Army game. Certainly a strong team will not be met on that date.

Blocking Makes Those Long Gridiron Jaunts

How many football fans who cheer for the halfback who races sixty yards for a touchdown ever think of all that was made to make the play possible. Football coaches rarely look at the man running with the ball, but watch the men who are ploughing along in front of him, clipping off the ends, and the secondary defense.

At the first sign of the end, or if the guard and tackle fail to get the guard, and the end lets the tackle charge him back, the halfback will never pass the line of scrimmage. But few fans are in the habit of even fewer appreciate the fine points of the game when they see it.

PREPS SEEK GAME.

Army and Navy Preps seek a basketball engagement this week. Frank Newberry, in charge of athletics at the school, is looking for a scholastic team to play Friday.

STATE MAKES BID.

Maryland State College is making a bid for many baseball games during the coming spring. The College Parkers appear willing to take on any of the college nines. Several good trips are being arranged, it is said.

LAING IS ELECTED.

James Laing, of West Virginia, who played end on the Episcopal High eleven last fall, was elected captain for next season.
